Our dear friends,
Loving greetings from Mizpah Home!

“In everything to give thanks...” is not the easiest rule to live by. Yet, who better than Paul to lay down such a challenge? At Mizpah, we too have had our taste of the bitter-sweet challenge this command brings.

Every Sunday afternoon Sneha and Manoj were sure to get a phone-call from home. A constant question Sneha had for both her parents was “How is your health? What’s the latest thing the doctor said?” Both parents are terminally ill. However, this Sunday only Mum came to the phone, “Pray for your father children, he isn’t well today” she said through her tears.

On Monday, both children were called back from school mid-way through the morning session. Their father had died and they were to go back to their village (in the state of Andhra Pradesh) for once last glimpse of him. Their mother had asked for her children to be near her for her comfort.

Yes, we thank the Lord for hard days that come by to make us strong. Our work and lives are often put into perspective by the trials we face. “I know my Redeemer lives...” is now a sacred chant from the heart.

Yet all is not gloom and sorrow. Mid-term holidays have given some of our children the chance to visit home, while others have had fun things to do. Friends have visited and evening outings have been accompanied by much fun and learning.

The children have put together an interesting programme on Global Warming for All India Radio. We are grateful for all the help and encouragement we received from Michael and Carys Davies.

The children were enthusiastic, offering their full cooperation in learning their special parts. It was a joyous learning experience for all those who had the opportunity to get involved.

Friends, we value your prayers for us. We know that the prayers of saints will rise as long as Jesus lives. Forever!

God bless and encourage you in the trying times of this life to be an overcomer in Him.

With love and prayers.
